The 25 to Watch list spotlights dancers, choreographers, and creators whose artistry, momentum, and unique perspectives mark them as artists to follow in the year ahead. Juliette's inclusion reflects her growing national and international recognition as a dynamic and versatile performer.

A native of Phoenix, Arizona, Juliette Ochoa began her ballet training under Nancy Crowley and Daniel Baudendistel before joining Ballet Arizona's Studio Company, where she performed soloist roles in The Sleeping Beauty and The Nutcracker. She continued her training with Pacific Northwest Ballet's Professional Division and earned her BFA from USC Kaufman, graduating summa cum laude under the direction of William Forsythe and Jodie Gates. She has performed with Aspen Santa Fe Ballet and was selected to dance work by Marcos Morau at the b12 Dance Festival in Berlin, Germany.

Since joining Oregon Ballet Theatre, Juliette has been praised for her musicality, technical clarity, and emotional depth, excelling across classical and contemporary repertoire.

"I'm incredibly honored to be included in Dance Magazine's 25 to Watch," said Juliette Ochoa. "To be recognized alongside so many inspiring artists is deeply meaningful. I'm grateful to Oregon Ballet Theatre for fostering a uniquely supportive culture and environment where curiosity, risk-taking, and growth are encouraged."

"We are so proud of Juliette and this well-deserved recognition," said Dani Rowe, Artistic Director of Oregon Ballet Theatre. "She brings an extraordinary combination of intelligence, generosity, and artistry to her work. Juliette is constantly evolving, and this honor reflects the exciting trajectory of her career."
